WOODBIDGE, N.J. — Intelligent Security Systems (ISS), a global provider of intelligent video management systems (VMS) solutions with natively developed analytics, announces the integration between the company's SecurOS VMS software and EntraPass Access Control from Tyco security solutions

Now a member of Tyco's Johnson Controls Connected Partner Program, ISS says the integration provides users with a powerful video surveillance and access control solution managed via the SecurOS user interface. All EntraPASS events can be managed from a single GUI and cameras from the ISS VMS can be easily linked to EntraPASS devices, according to the company.

“We are exceptionally pleased to deliver integration with EntraPass Access Solution, which further extends the usability, cost-effectiveness and holistic capabilities of ISS' SecurOS v.10 VMS on an even higher level,”

The EntraPass solution includes a suite of high -performance software that allows customers to design and operate any number of doors where card access is required. Is compatible with EntraPASS entire line of door controllers.

“ISS has demonstrated their innate ability to develop and adapt innovative software solutions onto their SecurOS VMS platform. The integration of EntraPass further provides users with a very powerful and intuitive integrated solution,” says Scott McNulty, senior product manager – integrations, Johnson Controls.
